

AAQ Business

Why study a vocational Business course?

Vocational Business qualifications are designed with the workplace in mind and provide a good alternative to A Levels. A vocational Business course will develop your core skills and understanding of the requirements of the business sector. You will gain hands-on experience and have the opportunity to focus on specific topics such as human resources, marketing and accounting & finance.

What skills will I learn from studying a vocational Business course?

Studying a vocational Business course will enable you to develop the fundamental skills recognised as most important by higher education and employers. This qualification offers you the chance to develop a range of transferable skills such as problem solving, communication, teamwork and research as part of your learning. Assessment will involve coursework as well as examinations so effective time management skills will also be developed.

Having studied a vocational Business course, what opportunities will be open to me?

This qualification supports entry to a range of business and enterprise associated higher education courses, such as management, finance, entrepreneurship, and economics when taken alongside other qualifications. It will also benefit you if you are looking to undertake an apprenticeship in a business related area.
